SEEDLING NURSERIES AND SALES

This is a list compiled by Washington Farm Forestry Association (WFFA) in August of 2016 to provide members with several sources for seedlings. We have highlighted sources that support WFFA through our Patron Program, by supporting our Annual Meetings as vendors or by purchasing ads in the WFFA Landowner News or Northwest Woodlands publications. This is not meant to be a comprehensive list. If you have sources to add, please contact info@wafarmforestry.com.

Conservation Districts – A good source for a variety of native trees and plants are the conservation district plant sales that are held each year, usually around the beginning of March. You may need to pre-order to guarantee availability of what you want, and the deadline can be as early as December. Bare root stock, live stakes, and seedlings are available through these sales, generally offering a low-cost alternative to nurseries. Here are some of the plant sales that occur annually in the North Puget Sound area. Contact the plant sale in your county to get specific dates, request a sale brochure, and get added to their announcement list.

- King Conservation District—425-282-1898 [http://www.kingcd.org/]
- Skagit Conservation District—360-428-4313 [http://www.skagitcd.org/]
- Snohomish Conservation District—425-335-5634 ext. 4 [http://snohomishcd.org/]
- Whatcom Conservation District—360-354-2035 [http://www.whatcomcd.org/]
- Whidbey Island Conservation District—360-678-4708 [http://www.whidbeycd.org/]

Fir Run Nursery in Orting is available at 253-221-3238 or visit [http://www.firrunnursery.com/]

Forest Seedling Network is a website where you can search for available seedlings for sale: Visit [http://www.forestseedlingnetwork.com/].

Hood Canal Nursery is a wholesale nursery in Port Gamble and can be reached at 360-297-7555.

IFA Nurseries, Inc. mostly sell on contract, but additional stock is sometimes available for your seed zone. For more information call 503-855-3358 or visit ifanurseries.com.

Lewis River Reforestation is a bareroot nursery in Woodland and can be reached at 360-225-6357 or visit [http://lrrinc.com/].

Native Plant Nurseries – Here are several nurseries that have been known to carry harder to find native trees and plants:

- Fourth Corner Nurseries, Bellingham, WA 360-592-2250 [http://www.fourthcornernurseries.com]
- MsK Rare Plant Nursery, Shoreline, WA 206-546-1281 [http://msknursery.com/]
- Woodbrook Nursery, Gig Harbor, WA 253-857-6808 [http://woodbrooknativeplantnursery.com/]

Pitkin Nursery (University of Idaho), for those in eastern Washington, is a good seedling sale source for next spring and begin on September 1. For more information, visit [https://seedlings.uidaho.com/].

Silvaseed also sells on contract, but with wholesale opportunities for excess seedlings. For more information call 253-843-2246 or visit silvaseed.com.

The Washington Association of Conservation Districts (WACD) Plant Materials Center in Bow has a wide variety of native trees and plants (bare root and live stake), usually in bundles of 25 or 50. They take orders year-round for distribution in winter and early spring. For more information call 360-757-1094 or visit [http://www.wacdpmc.org/].

Washington Department of Natural Resource’s Webster Nursery south of Tumwater has seedlings of the most commonly planted tree species available in bundles of 100. They begin taking orders on the first business day of September, and they often sell out. For more information call 1-877-890-2626 or visit [http://www.dnr.wa.gov/BusinessPermits/Topics/WebsterForestNursery/].

Weyerhaeuser sells seedlings to the public. For more information call 1-800-732-4769 or visit [http://www.weyerhaeuser.com/Businesses/WesternSeedlingSales].